

Oracle Retail Training Development

A successful Oracle Retail implementation involves a dedicated team and lots of resources, leaving little manpower to build comprehensive training materials. Deciding what content to build, which processes to explain, and what learning methods are best for the audience can be difficult for an implementation team already pre-occupied with other tasks.

Martec has years of successful experience building and presenting training materials for retailers including Oracle Retail. We can help design a training plan for your team based on your needs and timelines.

Training

We can offer both instructor led and online training materials to ensure both a smooth launch and continuing training for new hires and current staff.

We can also provide extensive supporting training documentation, user guides, quick reference cards, or other training aids, as your team requires.

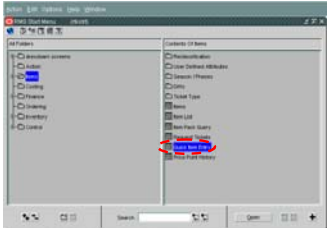

Recently, we completed a successful training project for a large US retailer going live with Oracle Retail v12. Our team assessed the client's needs then developed and delivered the exact content they desired within a short, six-week time frame. Training began on time, and was very well received. Samples of our instructor led and online classes are shown here. Complete notes accompany our Instructor led classes for future reference and review.

If your training development has not already begun, have you thought about how you will train your new hires in the coming months or years? If you already have existing training materials - will those still apply as your company upgrades Oracle Retail? If the answers are no, Martec can do the work for you.
